Drug dealing link denied Trial to conclude today

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

EAST ST. LOUIS — A former Granite City resident testified Wednesday that a leaking roof was his only connection with an alleged drug ringleader during a $100,000 cocaine deal last November.

Ron Flaucher, a part-owner of Quality Fiberglass in Granite City, told the jury his meeting the day of the drug deal with alleged drug-dealing leader John Lanter of Carlyle was to discuss the repair of the roof at Lanter's house.

"I guess his roof was leaking and he wanted to get it fixed," Flaucher said.

Flaucher, along with Willie Hall and Ace Hall, both of East St. Louis, are on trial in federal court for allegedly conspiring to distribute and sell cocaine. The attorneys were to present final arguments in the case this morning (Thursday) and turn the case over to the jury.

Their trial is the first in a series expected this summer involving what federal authorities are calling a large-scale illegal drug organization headed by Lanter, Joseph Sterkis, who worked as a federal informant for about six months beginning last June, is expected to be the key witness in all of the cases.

Also facing federal charges as part of the Lanter-organization are former Panama Jax owner Danny Cox of Collinsville, who faces charges of conspiracy and possession of cocaine, and former Panama Jax bouncer Dennis DeLuca, also of Collinsville, who faces charges involving possession of more than 100 marijuana plants at a farm in Carlyle.

Using a body microphone, federal informant Sterkis, who set up the sale of five kilograms of cocaine to Lanter on Nov. 30, tape-recorded Lanter saying he was going to meet Flaucher to get $50,000 of the needed money. The meeting was set at the Hardee's at Illinois 3 and Interstate 270 in Granite City.

Flaucher testified he met Lanter at the Hardee's, but denied the meeting had anything to do with a drug sale or that he knew anything about $50,000.

In testimony Wednesday, Flaucher said he didn't know Sterkis, Cox or DeLuca, and hadn't met Ace and Willie Hall until his and their arrest by fed-

City to pay half of archaeological dig costs

By Bob Slate
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Taxpayers will pick up half of the cost of the archaeological dig currently under way at the future site of Wal-Mart.

According to Economic Development Director Alan Ortbals, the cost of the excavation is estimated at $48,000. The city will pick up $24,000 of that cost by means of an amendment to its agreement with Wal-Mart.

The total cost of the road and sewer improvements necessitated by the new Wal-Mart store was originally estimated at about $521,000 by S.M. Wilson and Co. Under the original Wal-Mart agreement, the city was to pay for the first $350,000 of the project, with Wal-Mart picking up the remainder.

The city financed its portion of the cost through a Madison County Community Development low-interest (3 percent) loan for $225,000 and a loan from Wal-Mart for $125,000 (at 9 percent over two years).

But the recent discovery of possible Native American artifacts on the site by the Illinois Historical Preservation Society required an archaeological excavation.

With this knowledge, according to Ortbals, Jim Sachs of Wal-Mart's local developer, Eisenburg Development, insisted that its agreement with the city be amended to raise the city's portion of improvement costs from $350,000 to $574,000.

Wal-Mart will increase its loan to the city from $125,000 to $149,000 and will pay the other half of the $48,000 for excavation work.

The proposed amendment to the agreement was the subject of some heated debate Tuesday night.

Alderman Dan Partney argued that the city had caved-in in negotiating the deal. He said a number of parties stand to make a profit from the development, but that only the city was willing to bear the cost, along with Wal-Mart.

"The property owner doesn't want to come up with ten cents. The developer doesn't want to come up with ten cents. All the burden is being placed on the taxpayers ... because nobody else wants to make any sacrifice," Partney said.

"Everyone, including me, is happy we are going to (build) a Wal-Mart, but to believe Wal-Mart won't locate in Granite City because of $48,000 is a bunch of smoke and mirrors ... Now the taxpayers are going to have to bite the bullet. 'Normally in business,' Partney continued, "all parties split the cost if an error is made due to nobody's fault in particular."

Singer visits family here

Bonnie Sheridan now appears on 'Roseanne'

By Bob Slate
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Bonnie Sheridan is one of Granite City's best kept secrets.

That is not to say her name is not recognized by a wide audience. After all, she is well known for her recent performances as the waitress "Bonnie" on the hit television show "Roseanne."

An older audience might recognize the name Bonnie Bramlett.

The singer/songwriter skyrocketed to fame with her first band, "Delaney & Bonnie & Friends," featuring such then-unknown performers as Rita Coolidge, Jim Keltner, Bobby Keaton (later of the Rolling Stones), Bobby Whitlock, and two guitarists — between bands at the time — named Eric Clapton and George Harrison.

Her songwriting credits include "(Groupie) Superstar" (the same tune made famous by the Carpenters) and recently "covered" by Luther Vandross on his platinum LP "Busy Body" and "Let It Rain" (with which Clapton still closes his live shows).

But few know that the legendary singer/songwriter and rising actress grew up in Granite City; her mother, Ruth Nizinski, still resides here in the 2200 block of Elm Avenue.

Bonnie returned to visit family and friends over the Memorial Day holiday, giving local residents a chance to catch up on her career.

Bonnie was groomed to sing in church, and performed locally in Gaslight Square clubs and at Teen Town at the YMCA with acts like the Ike and Tina Turner Revue.

An Ikette, Bonnie was forced to leave the Revue when sweat streaked the tanning makeup from her face, exposing her whiteness to the prejudice of the times, according to her husband/manager/band-mate/producer Danny Sheridan.

By age 13 Bonnie was on the road. She moved to Los Angeles, where she met and married Delaney Bramlett and helped form the now defunct, history-making "Delaney & Bonnie &

Bonnie Sheridan ... famed singer

Friends."

The band and the marriage broke up in 1972. She then cut her debut solo album featuring a fledgling Average White Band.

Other albums followed, with mixed success. She toured with Stephen Stills in 1981, released a controversial gospel album, "Step by Step," and became a member of the Allman Brothers Band.

"But Bonnie decided she needed some time off, and moved deep into the Georgia woods for a few years."

But, under the guidance of Danny, she has returned to the musical mainstream with her new band, "Bandolero Doctors."

The Doctors recently returned from a month-long tour of southern states, including dates in Austin, New Orleans and Albuquerque, and Bonnie and Danny decided to visit family members here before returning to their home in Encino, Calif.

Danny produced a videotape of a recent performance of the Bandolero Doctors, and popped it in the video-cassette recorder.

Listening to the tape makes it apparent that

School board hires member's brother

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — The District 9 school board voted Tuesday to hire a board member's brother as the district's director of food services.

The board voted to hire Brad Eavenson to replace Dick Erway, who is retiring at the end of this school year.

The director, with an entry-level annual salary of $25,571 based on the present administrative scale, is in charge of all of the district's dining facilities, including personnel and supplies.

Eavenson, who is the brother of board member/secretary Mark Eavenson, was the first choice of the administrative selection committee, according to Superintendent Gib Walmsley.

Walmsley said the committee was made up of Personnel Director Pat Schuman, Finance Director Norman Owca, Data Processing Director Marty Kessler and Granite City High School Principal David Painter.

Walmsley said the committee screened all the applications received and narrowed the field. After interviewing the remaining applicants, he said, the committee presented a ranked list to the board members several weeks ago.

From that list, Walmsley said, the board interviewed the top

A.O. Smith may cut 10-15 job slots here

GRANITE CITY — A downturn in the automotive industry has prompted A.O. Smith Automotive Products Co. to cut 25 percent of its staff nationwide.

According to Edward J. O'Connor, vice-president of Human Resources and Public Affairs in the company's Milwaukee office, the reduction could result in the loss of 10 to 15 jobs at the Granite City facility.

"As the Granite City operation is a part of the Automotive Products unit, there are roughly 10 to 15 jobs there that could be impacted by this cost reduction effort," O'Connor said.

Automotive Products is the largest operating unit of A.O. Smith Corp.

"Automotive Products must remain a viable, competitive operation even during poor economic times such as we're now experiencing. In reassessing the current automotive market and projected volumes, we are convinced that a dramatic change in organization design is required in order to achieve our stated earnings objective by 1993," Robert J. O'Toole, president and chief executive officer for the company, said in a press release.

The goal of the program is to reduce cost by $55 million from all phases of the operation. The program is targeted for completion within 18 months, according to O'Toole.

The $55 million objective will

Venice bridge bonds proposed to ease area auto congestion

A bond sale in Venice could smooth the way for Metro East drivers heading to St. Louis. Venice officials are trying to promote a deal to sell $25 million in bonds to renovate the deteriorating McKinley Bridge. Owned by the city of Venice, the bridge crosses the Mississippi River between Venice and north St. Louis.

"We are at the crossroads," Mayor Tyrone Echols said. "We need money to put the bridge in shape and make it viable into the year 2000."

Echols confirmed that he had met with a bond consultant of Shearson Lehman Brothers of St. Louis to look for potential bond buyers.

The McKinley Bridge was built by the former Illinois Terminal Railroad, in 1910 and bought by Venice in 1958.

The bridge carries an average of 17,600 vehicles a day. Daily commuters complain about the bumpy bridge deck and the rusty girders, said Madison County Board member Don Garrett of Madison.

"It's like riding across a washboard," Garrett said.

A $25 million bond issue would pay the balance of $8 million in current bridge bonds due in 1990, interim bridge manager Tyrone Q. Echols, the son of Mayor Tyrone Echols, said.

The remaining $17 million would pay for a new $7 million deck, a paint job and widening of traffic lanes and bridge approaches, he said.

"We are talking with bond consultants to see if a bond issue is possible," Echols said. "We are optimistic."

A current bond payment of $1 million a year is a drain on the $2.8 million in annual revenue collected from tolls, he said.

Approximately $1.8 million is also paid annually in salaries for 12 toll collectors plus maintenance, inspection and insurance.

"We have to stretch our budget to do maintenance and keep the potholes filled," Echols said.

A face lifting for the bridge could help attract new businesses along Illinois 3 from Venice to Wood River, said R.C. Bush, executive vice president of the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce.

"We would see a boom in new business along Route 3," Bush predicted.

Bush has been meeting with car dealers and manufacturers who are interested in building along Illinois 3.

Bill Crews of the Greater Alton/Twin Rivers Growth Association said he agreed that renovation of the bridge would boost the economy in the region.

"It's the quickest way from Alton to downtown St. Louis," said Crews, president of the association.

Renovation of the bridge is vital to relieve congestion over three other bridges into St. Louis, said Dale Klohr, district engineer of the Illinois Department of Transportation.

The other three are the Martin Luther King and Poplar Street bridges, jointly owned by Illinois and Missouri, and the Eads Bridge, owned by the city of St. Louis.

Even if McKinley is rehabilitated, a new six-lane bridge must be built from Illinois into St. Louis in the next 10 years, Klohr said.

A $4 million study may begin this summer to determine costs, location and type of construction for a new bridge, Klohr said.

An inspection by Hardesty &

Hanover Consulting Engineers of New York in May 1990 showed the McKinley Bridge was structurally safe.

"It was built to carry trains across the Mississippi," Echols, the bridge manager, said. "It's solid as a rock."

Garrett said state funds should be appropriated to build a new $7 million deck on the bridge.

Klohr said, however, that state money cannot be spent on the bridge unless the structure is operated by IDOT.

"It must be toll-free, debt-free and in good structural condition for the state even to consider taking it over," Klohr said.

A state appropriation to rebuild the bridge deck would be a "shot in the arm for the Metro East economy," Garrett said.

"We believe that legislators in Springfield can find a way to help the bridge," he said.

A $7 million state investment in a new bridge deck would bring $50 million in new businesses and jobs to Illinois, Garrett said.

"We owe it to the survival of the Metro East communities," Garrett said.

News in review

News in review provides a summary of some of the past week's stories. This column is designed for out-of-town readers who do not receive the Sunday and Wednesday Press-Record/Journals.

Testimony at the Madison County coroner's inquest of Belleville real estate developer Frank O'Donnell showed his death may have been the result of the plan of several people. An autopsy was performed in January after a toxicology test showed a lethal amount of secobarbital in his body at the time of death.

According to testimony two Collinsville men, Dennis DeLuca and Danny Cox, were involved in a plan where O'Donnell was to commit suicide and make it look like murder. Both DeLuca and Cox are under federal indictment on drug charges.

After 71 years of combined service in education, Granite City elementary school principals Donald Kopp and Arthur Menendez will retire this spring. Both came to Granite City in 1959.

The announcement that the federal Environmental Protection Agency apparently had needlessly forced the 2,242 residents of Times Beach, Mo., to abandon their homes forever — based on invalid scientific data — didn't surprise Brett Hanke, Granite's public works director. Hanke and Craig Tarpoff of Granite City were at the annual International Conference on Trace Substances in Environmental Health to present a paper when the announcement of the Times Beach "mistake" was made.

Area leaders say that cleanup, involving a 55-block area in Granite City, Madison and Venice and an estimated cost of $30 million, is not justified based on the data presented by the EPA. "At times the scientific community does not realize the monster it creates with research," Hanke and Tarpoff's paper says. "Like Dr. Frankenstein, the EPA has taken the 'parts' of scientific research and combined them into a monstrosity." Hanke called the diminished danger of dioxin "good news. But it doesn't make Times Beach any less of a ghost town. I don't want the same thing to happen here."

School recycling grants awarded

The Illinois Department of Energy and Natural Resources has selected 12 proposals for funding under ENR's School Recycling Pilot Program.

Proposals selected for funding include Madison County, $19,736. The grants, which range from $5,000 to $20,000, will be used to develop or expand school recycling projects.

Proposal guidelines required applicants to demonstrate a viable collection strategy and to identify markets for collected materials.

Grant awards will be used to purchase collection and storage equipment to recover recyclable materials, such as waste paper, from schools.

All the projects include an educational component and involve students in recycling projects at their schools.

Twenty proposals were submitted by regional school superintendents.

The proposed projects were evaluated on the basis of existing markets, use of recycled products, management ability, in-school collection, promotion, transferability and student population.

The recycling project will begin this fall. The grant money goes to the regional superintendents, who will distribute it to the schools under their jurisdiction.

If you finance your auto purchase elsewhere, you may end up like this.

Once you find the car you want, it's easy to get caught up in the excitement of owning it. Before you know it, the deal's complete, and you're on your way to show off the new wheels. Sounds great, but how do you know for sure you didn't "take a bath" in finance costs? Before you purchase your next vehicle, look to your credit union for low-cost financing. Granite City Steel & Community Federal Credit Union has reduced all loan rates on new cars and trucks by one-half percent. This special offer has been extended through June 30:

25% Down
9.4% APR for 48 months
10% Down
10.4% APR for 48 months
10.4% APR for 60 months
Nothing Down
9.0% APR for 36 months
11.5% APR for 48 months

(The credit union will also finance sales tax and license fees.)

Plus, many auto dealers offer cash rebates as an alternative to their own financing. By borrowing from your credit union, you may qualify for a dealer rebate to help decrease the purchase price of your car—and ultimately, your monthly payment.

So when it comes to your next vehicle purchase, let your credit union keep you from "taking a bath" in finance costs. To apply, stop by or call our loan department today.

And remember, you can save even more on our special rates and terms through the end of June, so hurry!

3 mayoral appointments rejected again by board

By Valerie Evenden
Staff writer

PONTOON BEACH — Mayor Glen Wilson may be getting frustrated with the Village Board of Trustees, which rejected his appointments to fill village offices once again at Tuesday night's meeting.

The reappointment of Keith Jensen as village attorney, the appointment of Charlotte Fowler as treasurer, replacing Raymond Gaudette, current treasurer, and the naming of William Ross as health inspector to replace Jack C. Merritt were turned down by the trustees in a 4-2 vote.

Due to a lengthy agenda at Tuesday's session and other commitments, board members voted at 10 p.m. to recess the session and resume at 7 p.m. today.

Wilson's appointment of the same individuals to the same positions was rejected by a majority vote of the village board at its April 23 meeting.

Voting against the appointments on April 23 and again Tuesday night were Trustees Loren Madison, Irene Karlechik, Robert Douglas and Marvin Ribbing.

Trustees Louis Whitsell and Bob Abel voted to retain Jensen and to replace Gaudette and Merritt.

Wilson once again resorted to the appointment of those named on a temporary basis. Neither of those being replaced has officially resigned.

Jensen said an opinion by the Illinois Municipal League states that:

Since no vacancies exist in the offices, the current officers should remain in their respective posts until appointment of a replacement who is qualified and confirmed by the board of trustees. Village Clerk Mary Warren said.

Appointments are made by the mayor with the advice and consent of the board.

Recession of Tuesday night's meeting left on hold consideration of a resolution to relinquish sales tax revenue to Don Johnston Chrysler-Plymouth.

The resolution would authorize the village to relinquish 50 percent of the sales tax monies to the dealership, up to the amount of the purchase price of property.

The agreement would stand only if the land acquired is within the corporate limits of Pontoon Beach.

Don Johnston, owner of the Chrysler-Plymouth dealership on 19th Street in Granite City, is negotiating the purchase of about five acres of land along Illinois 111 on which to locate the agency.

The resolution, if adopted, would serve to help Johnston financially in construction of a new-car dealership in Pontoon Beach, a village officer said.

Colwell sentencing to be rescheduled

EDWARDSVILLE — The sentencing of a Pontoon Beach man for the murder of his 81-year-old stepmother was delayed Wednesday so that defense attorney Dick Allen could attend a funeral.

The sentencing of Robert E. Colwell, 66, has not been rescheduled. Colwell pleaded guilty March 11 to first-degree murder in the May 3, 1990, shooting death of Lydia Powell Colwell.

Through plea negotiations reached with Assistant State's Attorney Robert Trone, Colwell's sentence is not to exceed 35 years.

Colwell confessed that he had struck his stepmother with a statue before shooting her three times in the head.

The murder followed an argument between the two over the will left by the man's father, Herman Colwell.

Herman Colwell, who died in September 1989, apparently left his son out of his will. According to records, a daughter died in 1967 and Colwell left his estate to his wife of 11 years.

BAC news important

We've said it before, but we'll say it again, since this week's headlines make the mention timely: There's no overstating the importance of fair geographic representation on the Belleville Area College Board.

Long-awaited creation of voting districts for BAC is almost complete. The State Board of Elections is expecting to submit a proposal to the board around June 3. BAC trustees will review the map of newly created subdistricts for the college and vote on it at their June 19 meeting.

The importance of this latest development can be seen in the geographic boundaries of the college and the traditional hometown of each of seven trustees. The district, which covers 2,182 square miles spread across six counties, will be divided into seven subdistricts according to population. Board members have been seated by a district-wide vote.

Historically, trustees have largely come from Belleville. The subdistricting will guarantee that representation will be chosen from each area the college serves.

Residents of the BAC district voted in November 1988 to have the college district subdivided. Because of the long legal process involved, and knowing that the Census would reveal a truer population count, trustees opted to put off the districting until this November.

The last two years have seen a valid effort by the school's board to place people on the board from areas other than Belleville. Don Theobald of Red Bud and Bob Maxwell of Granite City are good examples; both are from communities in which the school has branch campuses.

Three board members were to have been up for election this fall, but this process will cause all seven incumbents to run again. While it may be an inconvenience, it forces each officeholder to be accountable to the voters and likely will prompt some interest in the college district, which sometimes goes unnoticed until something controversial develops.

Courts should stay out

Despite any advantage it may give to legal investigations, the courts have no business getting involved in the records of the Planned Parenthood clinic in Fairview Heights.

St. Clair County Associate Judge Robert LeChien has ordered Planned Parenthood to reveal the names and addresses of teen-age girls treated at the clinic as a result of an ongoing investigation by state child welfare officials into alleged improper sexual contact by a clinic doctor and a young patient during a gynecological exam.

At the center of the controversy are the rights of a medical facility to keep the names of patients confidential while maintaining the doctor-patient privilege to privacy.

LeChien has said the privilege doesn't exist in this case because a state law involving investigations of child abuse precludes the privacy. LeChien has stretched the order to allow for a lawyer to serve as an intermediary in the state's contacts with the clinic.

LeChien has ordered Planned Parenthood to reveal the names and addresses of girls 13 to 17 years old who received breast and pelvic exams from January through March 31. The judge ruled the names would be limited to those girls examined by a Belleville doctor who is accused in this case.

Unfortunately, there is no guarantee that the pursuit of justice will do more harm than good. Minors who have placed their trust in the clinic and not been victims of the above-mentioned allegations may be harmed if investigators inadvertently disclose that they have been clinic patients. Few teens are willing to be associated with seeking information on birth control, parenting, or abortion referral.

Investigators should limit their research to those patients who willingly come forward and otherwise build their case around the accusations to date.

It's public business

The following guest editorial ran in the Alton Telegraph. Organizations representing the state's elected officials are trying to crush revisions of the Illinois Open Meetings Act aimed at making government more accountable.

Leading the hit list of many public officials is a requirement that all closed sessions of public bodies be tape recorded. The tapes would remain confidential but could be subject to inspection by judges or state's attorneys in the event of suspected violations.

Simply put, the Open Meetings Act is designed to ensure that the public business is conducted in public. It requires most public bodies in the state to issue notice of their meetings and to conduct all discussions and votes in sessions open to the public.

The act does allow for so-called "executive sessions" which may be conducted behind closed doors. We have no quarrel with most of those exceptions. Specific discussions of the acquisition or sale of real estate, for example, may be conducted behind closed doors. That obviously makes sense, since no public body could bargain in the public's best interest if prices had to be discussed in public.

The law also permits secret discussions of "information regarding appointment, employment or dismissal of an employee or officer" — often called the "personnel exemption." Sensible again since public bodies need the flexibility to be candid in such discussions.

Other exemptions are permitted for pending or imminent lawsuits against or on behalf of the public body or for collective bargaining. Again, legitimate.

So, where's the problem?

The problem lies in the difficulty of enforcement and the public's lack of any checks on abuses.

We have seen the exemption for "personnel" invoked, for example, to conceal consideration of how revenue projections might affect employment, or to close discussions of the comparative merits of two bidders competing to provide a service or product.

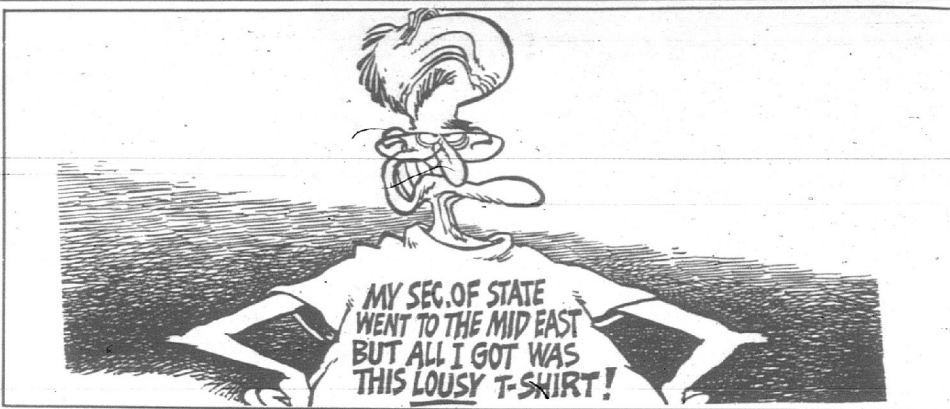

Some public bodies invoke such exemptions habitually. And even if the public or press suspects that certain discussions do not qualify for the shield of secrecy, there is little proof available.

The taping requirement of the proposed meetings is designed to prevent such abuses.

Public bodies could still take advantage of closed sessions when needed and permitted and the appropriate law enforcement officials would have access to "evidence" if allegations of abuse arose.

More importantly, the assurance that such "evidence" exists might encourage prudence in invoking the exemptions.

This is not simply an issue for the press. It is an issue for every person who pays taxes in Illinois or who derives some service from those taxes. Elected officials act on our behalf. Their votes are nothing more than our proxies and we all have a right to know our own business.

Juvenile justice: the three concerns

To the editor: The Southwestern Illinois Law Enforcement Commission recently conducted a major Juvenile Justice Conference in Collinsville, funded by the Police Training Board.

Professional practitioners from the administration of juvenile justice convened to identify problems and proffer solutions concerning alternatives to detention for non-violent juvenile delinquents.

During the conference, there were three common concerns: drugs, violence and ineffective parenting.

Underpinning burgeoning violence, drugs and serious juvenile crime was the fact that the infrastructure of this nation, the family, is becoming shattered, torn and routed.

Too many parents are not fulfilling their moral obligation to transfer the values of our Judeo-Christian heritage. The crisis in juvenile justice is directly related to a lack of parenting skills.

Are we approaching the time when our elementary schools will provide voluntary parenting skills in the evening or Saturday?

In the future, will legislation be enacted which mandates parenting classes for the mothers and fathers of kids who are delinquent and/or disruptively recalcitrant?

Regardless, ineffective parenting is an egregious problem approaching crisis proportion.

Let the community anti-drug war also include a war on irresponsible parenting.

Incest requires family counseling

To the editor: When a man seeks help for alcoholism, he is congratulated and praised for his bravery. He is not questioned about how much he drank or how often he drove drunk.

He is not then charged with public drunkenness or driving while intoxicated and sentenced to jail. He is given the help he sought.

When a man admits himself into drug rehabilitation, he is admired and respected for his courage. He is not interrogated about his drug dealings. He is not then charged with drug possession and sent to prison. He is given the help he needs.

But, if a man seeks out a therapist after committing incest and requests help for himself, his victim, and his family, the therapist is mandated to report the abuse to the Department of Children and Family Services.

DCFS in turn is mandated to report it to the police. Then, because this man has cooperated with the hope of saving his family, the state's attorney has more evidence against a stronger case than would be possible against a man still denying the problem. Yet, the man who comes forward is the one much more likely to be healed.

Incest is an entire-family problem and cannot be solved merely by placing the perpetrator behind bars.

In a case where the abuser admits to what has happened, takes full responsibility for his actions, and shows the desire for counseling, perhaps time, energy and money would be better spent on helping the family reunite as a healthy unit rather than concentrating on punishment.

We all understand the need to protect the child. We see the reasoning behind supervised visitation and court-ordered therapy. But long prison terms with no availability of counseling and the destruction of families who want to be saved do not make any sense.

The havoc created in the child's life by these "solutions" may be as devastating to the child as the abuse itself.

Revealing the truth about the "secret" and seeking professional help are the main hope for healing, not just for the family, but for future generations and society in general.

But we need to believe that the man who asks for help with an incest problem is just as courageous as the man brave enough to ask for help with a drug or alcohol problem.

Until we change the laws or the attitudes regarding incest, the price of asking for help may be too high.

Vital to enact helmet legislation

To the editor: The Illinois Senate has a chance to save lives and badly needed funds this year by passing Senate Bill 22, which would require motorcycle operators and passengers to wear helmets.

Motorcycle crashes account for only 1.5 percent of all motor vehicle crashes in Illinois, but 10.9 percent of all fatal ones.

Studies show that in states like Illinois that do not have mandatory helmet laws, less than a third of all motorcycle riders involved in accidents wear helmets, and unhelmeted motorcycle riders have three times as many head injuries.

The state's neglect to require that motorcycle riders wear helmets in Illinois during 1988 cost more than $3.3 million, almost half of which came from the state's general fund. The already overburdened budget of the Department of Public Aid.

Motorcyclists had worn helmets, Illinois could have saved $8.2 million and millions more in long-term care and rehabilitation expenses.

It is twice as expensive to treat unhelmeted riders as those injured wearing helmets. Courts have upheld mandatory helmet laws in more than 25 states. The U.S. Supreme Court has upheld all helmet laws in cases appealed to it.

Helmet laws work: about 98 percent of motorcycle riders in states with these laws wear helmets.

Officials need to reduce spending

(This opinion piece was written by Dennis McMurray, who reports on state news for the Alton Telegraph.) Illinois state government finances seem to be getting almost as bad as those of Donald Trump.

The news keeps getting gloomier. State Comptroller Dawn Clark Loutch reported the cash balance on April 30 was the second lowest month-end balance in history, with a mere $5.05 million, or about 10 minutes worth of typical spending for state government.

The governor's Bureau of the Budget reported revenues for the nine months of the fiscal year ending March 30 were $181 million less than projected in January and down $75 million from the March 6 budget message.

Some lawmakers are predicting the end of the spring session June 30 might be stretched through July and possibly into August to grapple with the budget.

House Majority Leader Jim McPike, D-Alton, said the state budget situation is "the worst in the 15 years I've been here."

Gov. Jim Edgar made a campaign pledge to oppose any state tax increases beyond current levels, but he also says he's determined to get the state's fiscal house in order as quickly as possible. He has rejected suggestions that the state borrow more money or delay still more on paying old bills.

An aggravating aspect of the budget mess is that great multitudes of the citizenry are starting to complain again that state government's financial problems all have something to do with the lottery. Vast numbers of otherwise intelligent people claim to remember a promise that the lottery would eliminate any need for higher taxes, at least for education.

The problem is that not enough people have spent any where near enough on lottery tickets to finance the schools.

Even at all-time record sales of about $1.3 billion in a year, that means about $650 million for education, after the winners are paid off. The state share of the school costs is about $1.4 billion.

The best way to solve the state's budget crisis and end the arguments and confusion over the lottery and education is to require that all state support for education come from the lottery.

To do this at current levels would require passage of what I call The Universal Lottery Players and Education Finance Act of 1991, hereafter referred to as the ULPEFA.

Edgar would be able to sign this legislation without breaking his campaign promise, because it would not be a tax increase but would actually allow a tax cut. Here's how it would work:

Each taxpaying Illinois citizen would be required to invest about $1,400 in lottery tickets each year, with the state's profit earmarked for schools. That is about what is needed to continue the state's level of state support, based on about 5 million individual state income tax filers.

Lottery ticket purchase deductions would be made from payroll checks and your employer would be required to include vouchers redeemable for Lotto or any other game you choose.

This would raise enough money for education that we could also cut the state income tax rates. Instead of the current 3 percent rate, or even going back to the previous 2.5 percent rate on individuals, ULPEFA would allow the rate to be slashed to 2 percent. All of the remaining money from the income tax and other taxes would pay for other state government programs.

What would this mean for you? Well, let's suppose you have an annual taxable income of $30,000 per year. Under this plan, $1,400 of that would be deducted for lottery tickets. But remember, those tickets could bring you millions, and if not, you would get some of it back through a $300 state income tax saving.

I realize there are some Illinoisans who have moral objections to gambling, and I respect that. However, ULPEFA would also give the option of refusing the lottery ticket vouchers, and the $1,400 could be claimed as a deductible contribution to public education.

Kiwanis say thanks

To the editor: The Granite City Kiwanis Club would like to thank the following people for their generous contributions to our flag program:

Sonny Past, Koetting Ford, Goltis Association, Skip Milhouser, Irwin Chapel, Sunset Farms, Busch Glass, Ronald S. Motil, Dr. Mark Eavenson, Becker & Motil.

Granite City High School, Richard Ambuehl, Jim Tolhurst, Frank Toeniskoeiter, Rick Dickerson, Darrell Weible, John Novotny, Jan's Hallmark, Sandy's Wallpaper, Shop N' Save, Joe's Sewer Repair.

Parkinson-Alzheimer link probed

Local man taking part in W.U. study

By Jim Haverstick
Staff writer

After watching his father suffer from Parkinson's disease for years, Vasken "Buck" Haroian of Granite City knew exactly what was happening to him when he began having muscle tremors in his right hand.

But he did not accept this fate willingly. Haroian volunteered to take part in the Parkinson's motor assessment study as part of Washington University School of Medicine's Memory and Aging Project.

"I saw my father suffer so I wanted to contribute something to the research," Haroian said. "If they had had the knowledge that they have now, he wouldn't have suffered the way he did."

More than 600 people have volunteered for Alzheimer's and Parkinson's sections of the Memory and Aging Program since it began in 1989 in hopes of better understanding the diseases.

In the early 1980s, Haroian, 73, started feeling the muscle tremors in his right hand and stiffness in his limbs that is typical of Parkinson's disease.

He knew immediately what the tremors meant — he, too, would slowly lose control of his muscle functions.

Parkinson's disease, however, is not necessarily hereditary.

Lee Wetzel, 66, of Belleville, who is in the study also, does not have a family history of Parkinson's disease, but he has suffered from the disease for more than two years.

Presently, Haroian and Wetzel are on medication to control the tremors. They take various forms of El-Dopa, a synthetic replacement for dopamine, the chemical in the brain that controls the body's muscle functions, Haroian explained.

Parkinson's disease is the unexplained loss of dopamine in the brain that results in the deterioration of muscle control.

Symptoms include muscle tremors and stiffness, shuffled walking, head and shoulders hunched forward, and trouble maintaining a normal speech pattern, said Rev. Menckhus, research assistant with the study.

Haroian tries to remain as physically active as possible to keep his muscles from becoming too weak.

The medication does not stop the disease, but it does slow the disease's progression.

Haroian does not think of his work with the Parkinson's study as heroic or profound. He merely wants to know more about the disease that is affecting his life. Also, he wants to do his part to further the research, Wetzel agrees.

"I thought perhaps I could help someone else, or help myself by joining in the study," Haroian said. "It might mean a lot to me. If nothing else it beats sitting around doing nothing about it."

Dr. John Morris, director of the Memory and Aging Project, is conducting the study in an attempt to establish a link between Parkinson's and Alzheimer's diseases.

"The two diseases co-exist in patients more frequently than they exist alone," Morris said.

One third of Alzheimer's patients develop symptoms of Parkinson's disease and one third of Parkinson's patients have some form of dementia, he said.

"We are trying to see if one disease causes another one or if they just share similar symptoms," he said.

More than 100,000 people die of Alzheimer's disease each year, according to the Alzheimer's Association. Between 500,000 and 1.5 million people in the country suffer from Parkinson's disease, say representatives of the Parkinson's Association.

The figures are not more precise because Parkinson's often goes unreported.

Though there is no cure for either disease, there are medications to treat Parkinson's disease. If Morris can establish a link between the two diseases, he hopes he can find a way to treat Alzheimer's disease as well.

Illness 'just a word until you live with it'

By Jim Haverstick
Staff writer

When John Canterbury of Collinsville volunteered for the Memory and Aging Program at Washington University School of Medicine in 1979 he acted as a control subject, but his status with the program may soon change.

Canterbury, 76, now suffers from mild memory loss, he said. In the past year his short-term memory has begun to wane.

For example, Canterbury, a retired carpenter, recently experienced difficulty remodeling his bathroom.

"He would measure a board, then go to cut it and he would have to measure it again," Canterbury said. "He measured the first time," his wife, Florence, said. "But he is still a good carpenter."

Canterbury has also begun to have trouble performing the memory tests in the project, he said. It is published.

In one of the memory tests a series of colored blocks are arranged in a particular shape; once the blocks are separated, Canterbury must put them back in the original shape. Though he can still reshape the blocks, it takes him much longer to do it now than it used to, he said.

"I can still do it, but that is the test that I have trouble with," he said.

Canterbury has not been diagnosed as having any form of dementia. Presently he is still considered a control subject for the study, but if his memory problems worsen, his role with the program no matter what his role, he said. If his memory problems do worsen, Canterbury plans to continue with the program to help monitor the progression of dementia.

He and his wife have always been interested in furthering medical research. Years before entering the study, they both donated their bodies, after death, to Washington University Medical School.

Frank and Bernice Pinkas of Edwardsville entered the study for entirely different reasons.

Frank began showing signs of memory loss about five years ago. At first he began to misuse words, then he would forget where he was going in his car.

"He built the house," he could do everything, but three years ago he had trouble putting a toy together for the grandchildren," Bernice said.

He retired three years ago at the age of 56 from his job as an engineering inspector for Shell Oil Co. because his memory loss became a problem at work.

"I urged him to retire," Bernice said. "It is a dangerous job, he has to climb towers and crawl inside of pipelines. I was afraid he would get hurt."

A neurologist who was treating Frank suggested he join the Memory and Aging Project as a way to track the effects of the disease, Bernice said.

"We wanted to do whatever we could to find out more about Alzheimer's," she said.

Since participating in the study they have noticed the unusual, unexplainable effects of the disease. Frank has trouble finding his way when he travels outside of Edwardsville, but his actual driving skills haven't changed one bit, his wife said.

Though he can no longer work, he is still an excellent golfer, she added. In fact, golf is one of the few things that he can still do independently.

Frank volunteered to participate in an Alzheimer's drug treatment study at Washington University also, but the program was disbanded after a few months when it proved to be ineffectual.

Bernice said they would gladly volunteer for another study. They are anxious to find a cure, if not for Frank, perhaps to help others.

"Alzheimer's is just a word until you live with it. Then it is scary," Bernice said.

'Polka' birthday party set

Kathy Dohnal covers the Madison-Venice scene for the Press-Record/Journal. She can be contacted at 877-1096.

A Happy Polka 50th birthday party for Mike Zikovich, a former area resident, is being planned for Sunday, August 4, from 3 to 9 p.m. at the Croation Hall, 1000 Madison Ave., Madison.

Featured will be Mike Zikovich with the Herb Eberle Band, plus a special guest artist. No table reservations will be taken and only 425 tickets will be available. Advance tickets are $5 and at the door (if available) $6 tickets can be purchased at the Polish Hall and Croation Hall. Doors will open at 2 p.m. Jimmy Annis of O'Fallon, Mo., is planning the event. This will be Mike's only appearance in the greater St. Louis area.

The Madison Minerva Reading Club will host its annual Fun Night at Ralph and Charles Restaurant. President Nancy Cloufider welcomed members and guests. Karen Purkale gave the invocation and a buffet dinner was served.

Ten grants of $200 each were awarded to students Kimberly Wifler and Gregory Wray.

Games were played and prizes awarded.

Members attending were Lucille Podner, Velda Taylor, Loretta McGee, Mary Fields, Mary Moore, Donna Dorris, Irene Orr, Louise Kern and Helen Walters.

Pettit finds path is rocky to Rocky Mountain university presidency

Second of two columns

Last week we discussed our trip to the May 17 Colorado University commencement where Charles Kuralt accepted an honorary degree.

CU's higher-education system may be of further interest to Illinoisans, because one of five finalists for its presidency this spring was Lawrence A. Pettit, chancellor of the Southern Illinois University system.

GRADUATION SPEAKERS at Boulder included an unscheduled participant, Judith Albino, who defeated Pettit and the other contenders to win the presidency of the University of Colorado system.

She will supervise the chancellors of four campuses. (SIU's chancellor outranks the SIU at Edwardsville and SIU-Carbondale presidents.)

IT WASN'T FULLY clear what she had in mind.

College athletics is said to be a tail that wags many universities.

Colorado U. had the best football team in the nation this school year, but at several university events we attended not one word was spoken about sports.

Another current issue is that CU law professors have been taking home salaries from state statutes that are as much as $5,000 greater than what is stated in the annual personnel roster and departmental budget, the public record act says.

Other CU faculty and administrators also receive mid-year equity adjustments" after the roster is published.

THE NEW PRESIDENT said, "Fifty university officers as well as faculty, we should expect nothing less than open, simple and absolute honesty in all our dealings."

"The president must be accountable to the public that supports the university. And, she

Bill Winter

"While the university should do its best to ensure that its students are equipped for successful careers after graduation, it is more important that they graduate with the knowledge and ability needed to lead responsible and intellectually satisfying lives."

THE REV. JESSE JACKSON addressed 200 CU law school graduates, asserting that the American system tends to reward greed and selfishness.

He cited the funds used to bail out savings-and-loan "thieves," money that he said could have been spent to educate and heal America's poor.

He assailed federal economic policies that he said have caused hemorrhaging of U.S. resources into countries where labor is cheap.

Jackson told the new lawyers, "Civil rights is the critical challenge of our day. The 1991 Civil Rights Bill is the key to protecting the integrity and character of our national commitment to all of the people."

"WE DON'T HAVE a friend in the White House," the frequent White House hopeful said.

He criticized the Bush Administration for calling the rights bill "quota" legislation; he said it is not.

Jackson added, "Civil rights is a human right. If we can fight wars for human rights and self-determination abroad, we must honor these rights at home."

The opposition is from the National Association of Manufacturers and the Chamber of Commerce, who are trying to protect themselves from the consequences of their unequal patterns of employment and contract distribution.

He said the euphoria of American pride that embraced the troops returning from the Persian Gulf war will be tested when they are no longer troops.

"When they go back to the ghetto, why can't they have the same health care plan that the Congress that sent them there has? We should be able to guarantee their education. Put a yellow ribbon around that, if we love the truth."

Jackson urged the graduates to "never aim low and adjust. Remain permanently maladjusted and make the world better."

ANOTHER NOTEWORTHY point about Colorado is that it has authorized the opening of gambling casinos at three resort cities. Cripple Creek, Black Hawk and Central City will gain Nevada-style status on Oct. 1.

Some see it as ironic that legal gambling is planned in a state where so many pioneers once gambled their time and energy mining for gold.

At the Red Lantern bar in Cripple Creek, there is a metal figure of a prospector about to strike the ground with his pick.

On the base of the statue is a saying, "Two feet from a million dollars or a million feet from two dollars."

DOCTORAL DISSERTATIONS continue to be incomprehensible. At CU, one dealt with "Development of high viable cell density bioreactors for hybridoma suspension cultures."

Another: "A total Langrangian beam element for analysis of nonlinear space structures."

I may understand "properties inherited by the two-dimensional unfoldings of one-dimensional shapes." It means you can become a doctor of philosophy by learning how to fold a map?

I WASN'T SURPRISED to note there has been research on "the effect of long-term scopolamine treatment on learning and memory processing in the rat."

But one of the rodent reports floored me: "Head-directional information processing in rat posterior cortices."

BEV MENKHUS, a research assistant, puts Vaskan Haroian of Granite City through the paces of the temporal measurement of gait test as part of the Parkinson's/Azheimer's study in Washington University Medical School's Memory and Aging Project. The test helps to measure the effects of Parkinson's on the body.

•Study

monitoring the physical and mental capabilities of people suffering from each condition. Also, Morris monitors the condition of healthy adults to determine the normal aging process.

Twice a year subjects for the study are called to Wohl Clinic at Washington University School of Medicine for testing. People with Parkinson's disease are put through motor assessment tests. Haroian and Wetzel were prime subjects for the study because when it began they had not yet started to take medication.

Tests include a speed and accuracy test to see how well subjects react to stimuli, a finger tapping test to see if subjects can control hand movements, and gait test to see if subjects can stop muscle functions once set in motion.

Alzheimer's patients are put through similar tests with more emphasis on memory and mental agility. Tests include reading and following simple directions, recognizing and naming ordinary household items and understanding and retelling stories.

Alzheimer's disease is an unexplained, gradual deterioration of the brain cells that control memory and motor functions. The disease begins with a loss of short-term memory and eventually leads to total loss of memory and control of motor skills.

"We are trying to see if Alzheimer's and Parkinson's patients have the same muscle deterioration," Morris said. After three years of study, Morris is just now beginning to examine the data, he said. So far he has discovered that people with Parkinson's disease respond well to stimuli, but move slowly because of diminished muscle control.

Alzheimer's patients, on the other hand, are slow in movement and reaction time, he said. "We are trying to see if there is anyone who is predisposed to the disease. If we can predict who gets these diseases, we can prevent it or treat it ahead of time," Morris said.

However, it is still too early in the study to establish a link. It could take decades of research to establish a link, let alone a cure for either disease, he said.

For Haroian and others in the study, a cure is not likely to come in time to rescue them from the disease. But this will not deter Haroian's efforts to help fight Parkinson's.

"I know what it is like, so I just want to do my part to help with the research," Haroian said.

Baptist Church. Prizes were won by Zane Miller, Dorothy Watkins, and Eva Barrow. A sing-along was led by Eva Barrow, accompanied by Louise Acocks on piano. Other members attending were Mary Reed, Olive Joyner, Alfred Suhre, Charlotte Smith, Vicki Elmore, John Buckingham, Dorothy Teller, Ola White, Helen Floyd, Bertie Meyenberg, Marie Cook, Freda Jordan, Louise Baker, Myra Grote, Cletis Bardsley, Gladys Freeman, Velma Rice, Vera Kipkpatrick, Cleo Shusher, Hilda McMaisters, Madge Boone, Margaret Chadwick and Don Kinney. The birthdays of Louise Acocks, Evelyn Miles and Louise Baker were celebrated.

Kay Andersen, Tina Lyons, and Delphine Kinder of the Calvary Baptist Church, Bob and Betty Lewis of the Second Baptist Church and Jane Raphael and Sandy McMaisters of the Third Baptist Church, all of Granite City, attended the 50th anniversary celebration of Lake Sallateeska Baptist Camp near Pinckneyville. The welcome was given by Rose Rice, resource management director of the Illinois Baptist State Association. Rose Rice of Benton, Ill., secretary of the Special Ministries committee, gave the invocation. Sandy Wisdom, 62A/Mission Friends director, led Silly Camp Songs, and the Sallateeska Songs and Praise Choruses. The theme of the celebration was "We were here."

"In the Recent Past" was given by Richard and Josiah Lyon of Marion, Ill., and Kathy and Rebecca Worley of Mascoutah, Ill. Bobby and Claudia Sherer, Southern Baptist Missionaries to Japan, presented, "For a Missions Challenge." Betty Walker of Springfield talked on "Way Back When." Maurice Swinford, executive director of IBSA, spoke on "We Will Be Here In The Future." Arthur A.H. Nehring, camp manager, was also on the program; the benediction was given by Charles Damper, vice president of the Illinois Baptist State Association.

The Women's Missionary Union of First Baptist Church of Granite City held its annual Ladies Banquet May 18. The event was organized by Karen and Nitta Howard and held in the newly-decorated Fellowship Hall. A dinner of spaghetti, salad, breadsticks, fruit cocktail and various desserts was served followed by the evening's speaker, Carrie Hart.

Several musical numbers were then sung by guest Paul Miles, assisted by his wife, Paula of Second Baptist. The ladies were treated to a tongue-in-cheek fashion show and also a skit performed by Carolyn Prokopich and Susan Montgomery. Several prizes were awarded and a closing poem was read by Sharon Lesto.

Also attending the event were Pat, Paula, Christi and Jodi Parker, Mary Sadler, Rachel Montgomery, Eleanor Beck, Debbie Heintz, Anna Mae Bitlick, Lora Wroten, Velma Rice, Ellen and Sarah Douglas, Elinor Stagner, Gerri Holshouser, Denise Wright, Kelly Malone, Iva Howard, Freda Jordan, Mary Retd., Louise Baker, Amanda Howard, Jill Cowin, Thelma Dillard, Carlie Hoffman, Janice Gray, Betty Lylera, Sandy Curran and Doris Wilson.

Minnie Kamacho and Libby Nelson were honored with a dinner given by their children in observance of Mother's Day. The event was held in the home of George and Janice Kamacho, 1185 Lola.

A fried chicken dinner with all the trimmings was cooked and served by the honoree's daughters, Cecelia Kamacho, Marguerita (Kamacho) Skipper and Janice (Nelson) Kamacho.

Dinner was enjoyed by the following: Mrs. Bertha Englah, mother of Mrs. Libby Nelson; Mr. and Mrs. Rick (Marguerita) Skipper and Nickie and Kenny Skipper, Mr. and Mrs. George (Janice) Kamacho, Amber and Alyssa Kamacho, Mrs. Veronica (Nelson) Smith and daughters Heather and Ashley; Christopher Kamacho, Cecelia Kamacho; and Debbie Nelson.

SUE investigation continues in theft

EDWARDSVILLE — Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville authorities are continuing an investigation Tuesday that has turned up $234,000 missing from the bursar's office and resulted in the arrest of a cashier.

"There's no indication that others are involved," SUE spokesman Sam Smith said. "That's one purpose for the continued investigation, to see that the total problem is discovered."

Candace F. Wanzo, 28, of Centralia, was charged Thursday with theft of $234,000 during the past 13 months, Smith said. Wanzo posted $25,000 bond and was released Thursday night from the Madison County Jail, authorities said.

Wanzo is accused of concealing the thefts by using "fictitious cash conversions, fictitious vault reductions and fictitious personal checks," according to the warrant.

"What that means has not been explained," Smith said.

The money was missing from the vault in the bursar's office. Wanzo, a civil service employee, has been suspended with pay pending the outcome of the criminal investigation, Smith said. She has been a full-time cashier at the bursar's office since Sept. 1988. She had worked in the office part-time as a student but it is unknown when, Smith said.

SUE moved to try to recover at least $234,000 it alleges has been stolen by Wanzo.

A judge Friday froze the assets in five bank accounts of Wanzo.

Associate Judge Michael Meehan signed the order at the request of SUE attorneys who said the university might suffer irreparable losses unless the action was taken.

The accounts were frozen pending a hearing scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Monday before Meehan.

The accounts frozen by Meehan's order are in Magna Bank of Centralia, Central Bank of Glen Carbon, Mark Twain Edwardsville Bank and the SUE Credit Union.

The bursar's office acts as a bank for the university, handling transactions such as student payroll, loans and grants and processing of tuition, fees and housing rental payments. "In the course of a year, it handles millions of dollars," Smith said.

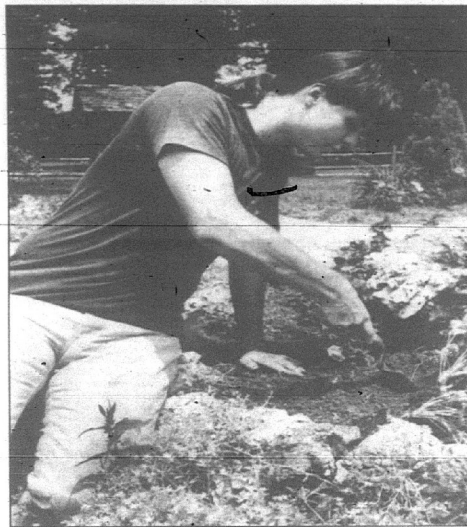

The missing money was discovered during a routine annual audit Monday by the university staff, Smith said he didn't know if the $234,000 was the total amount discovered missing.

University police were called to join the investigation Wednesday and Wanzo was arrested later that day. If she is convicted, she could face four to 15 years in prison.

Wanzo, who gave police an address in the 700 block of Kell Street, could not be reached for comment. A woman who identified herself as Wanzo's mother but refused to give her name in a telephone interview said the charges were out of character for her daughter. The woman said Wanzo's spending habits had not changed in the past year.

The bursar's office has remained open during the investigation but was closed Friday because of the Memorial Day holiday break.

State treasurer pledges $5 million to mortgages

By Bonita Tillman
Staff writer

EAST ST. LOUIS — State Treasurer Patrick Quinn has announced a plan to spend at least $5 million to help rebuild the Metro-East housing stock.

Area banks would use the state money to encourage residents to build or buy new single family owner-occupied homes and to developers interested in multiple buildings.

A press conference last week was attended by mayors from a number of local communities, including Cahokia, East St. Louis, Bell, Washington Park, Alorton, Centerville and National City.

Quinn said staff members from his office will work hard this spring and summer to distribute pamphlets and materials so the public will know more about the program and how to apply.

Willie Nelson, chairman of the Metro-East Lending Group, which initiated the Metro-East Affordable Housing Loan Program, said the program will be open to low and moderate income families making between $25,000 and $40,000 a year. Houses will be priced in the $53,000 to $60,000 range, he added.

"This is an historic day for us in East St. Louis. This commitment exemplifies concern and assistance in helping East St. Louis revitalize," he said.

Nelson said the group hopes to target a specific neighborhood so it can show progress, but loans for individual houses in other areas also will be considered. He would not disclose what areas have been selected.

East St. Louis Mayor Gordon Bush said he hopes to be able to break ground for new display homes to show those interested in the program by the end of May.

Brooklyn Mayor James Davis said the housing program is "one of the best things that ever happened" to his village. Village Clerk Meyer Wilson said he liked the state program better than a tax increment finance district, which the village had been considering, to help rebuild.

"We've had many follow-up calls since the (banker's) press conference from people wanting to know where they can buy the homes," Bush said. "We do have a shortage of quality homes which are available to buy."

Matthew 29:20 "... lo, I am with you always."

The Scripture states that heaven and earth will pass away, but His Word will never pass away. His Word states that He will never leave or forsake us. This promise belongs to us today, and He will not take it away from us.

This being the case then, know that He is with you. Whether you feel His presence or not, He is there. In the midst of trouble and trial, He is there. Whether you have a Spiritual or physical need, He stands ready to help you.

The simplest way to prove that He is near is to pray. Just make your need known to God and be sincere. The answer you need is already on the way.

He is with you. Today.

Hire

five candidates, including Brad Eavenson.

Board President Roy Koberna said another of the five finalists was the sister-in-law of another board member, causing some hard feelings, but the majority of the board decided to accept the recommendation of the administration.

Walmsey said it "was tough" having board relatives as two of the finalists, but said the board was only presented with the most qualified finalists.

He said that in the case of another recent vacancy, the spouse of one of the board members had applied and was not cleared by the administrative committee.

"I think our system is working," Walmsey said. "We can't afford to turn down the best candidate for the job."

"We have long had the policy that we won't hire someone just because he is a best friend, but we can't turn down the best candidate for a job just because he or she is a best friend, either."

Mark Eavenson, who said he abstained from the vote on his brother, said the administration had ranked Brad Eavenson "most qualified by far" and that nine of 11 people who interviewed Brad Eavenson ranked him as the top candidate.

Mark Eavenson said that when Brad Eavenson first came to him to say he was thinking about applying for the position, the board member told him, "I can't tell you not to apply. Go ahead if you want the position. I don't think you should be penalized just because of your last name."

In other business, the board voted to hire Ron Booth, a labor negotiator based in Springfield, Ill., as an adviser to the district's negotiating committee.

Koberna and Walmsey said Booth has worked for districts across the state and had been highly recommended.

"I guess most of the other schools have already used him as a negotiator, but we just voted to hire him to give us advice while we try to negotiate it on our own," Koberna said.

Walmsey said the district's negotiating committee is traditionally made up of two board members and at least three members of the school administration. He said a meeting was scheduled Wednesday night to set up some ground rules, but no negotiations have been planned yet.

"I think, like every other school district in the county, we are waiting to see what happens with the income tax surcharge before planning anything," Walmsey said.

The board also voted to concur with a vote of the high school student council and allow the three foreign exchange students this year to wear caps and gowns at the graduation ceremony and be presented a certificate of attendance during the program.

The board had earlier voted to have the exchange students at the ceremony, but not wearing caps and gowns. Koberna said more research had shown a student in the past had been allowed to wear a cap and gown, and in the absence of a formal policy, it was decided to put this year's decision to the students.

Walmsey said the vote showed that an overwhelming majority of the students wanted the exchange students to participate in the ceremony. Koberna said at the same time, the overwhelming majority also were against allowing the exchange students to actually graduate.

Walmsey said he expects the board's previous decision (no caps and gowns) to be the policy in future years.

trial authorities Nov. 30 near the Venture at Illinois 111 in Fairmont City.

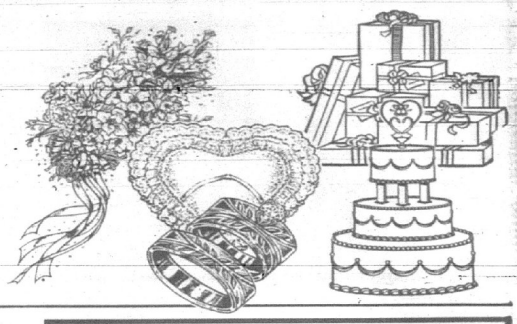

He testified he knew James Dant of Breese, who Sterkis said helped Lanter grow marijuana, and Bill McKinney of Hollywood, Fla., whose testimony alleged was Lanter's Florida cocaine connection.

But Flaugher, who testified he had seen McKinney several times during trips to Florida, said he knew nothing about Lanter being involved with cocaine, only that he was interested in boats and skin diving.

Flaugher testified he knew Lanter had once gone to prison for cocaine possession, but said that was Lanter's only involvement with drugs he knew about. Under cross-examination, Flaugher said he knew Dant and Lanter had accused him of stealing Lanter's grove of marijuana plants from an unoccupied island in the Mississippi River, but said their belief was unfounded and never being involved in the sale of any type of drugs to anyone.

Bi-State summer route service changes to go into effect June 9

Bi-State will make its regular summer service changes on Sunday, June 9. In Illinois, these changes include 23 bus routes which will be rerouted, with some having minor schedule changes to compensate for the construction of three light rail stations in the St. Louis downtown area. Three additional Illinois bus routes will have adjusted running times to compensate for added traffic congestion. The traffic pattern changes relating to the construction of Metro Link are scheduled to last approximately 14 months. In Illinois, the bus routes which will experience rerouting due to the construction are listed by route number and name: 301, Caseyville; 502, Cahokia; 503, Collinsville-Edwardsville; 503X, Edwardsville Express-via Glen Carbon; 552X, Highland-Troy Express; 553X, Edwardsville Express-via Maryville; 554X, Collinsville Express; 544X, Fairview Heights Express; 506, Missouri Avenue-M.L. King; 560, Belleville-St. Louis; 559X, Southbelt Express; 559N, Swansea-West Main Express; 560X, Belleville Express; 564X, Macouah Express; 565X, New Baden Express; 573, Washington Park; 576, Alta Vista; 577, Twentieth and Central; 505X, Waterloo-St. Louis Express.

Three bus routes in Illinois will have slight time adjustments to compensate for traffic. One is the 504X O'Fallon Express.

For more information or to request timetables, customers should call Bi-State Information weekdays from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m. at 1-800-223-3-BUS in Illinois.

Briefly

Elkettes hold banquet

The Elkettes held their annual Mother and Daughter Banquet on May 7 at 6:30 p.m. at the Elks' Lodge. Cocktails and hors d'oeuvre were enjoyed preceding a buffet dinner that was prepared and served by Jerry's Restaurant. President Candance Thompson welcomed 224 women and children to the event. Helen Todoroff gave the invocation and read a poem honoring the mothers. Manie Grob, Eleanor Buentle's mother, was present with a corsage for being the oldest mother in attendance. Topiary trees were used as table decorations and given as attendance prizes. Each woman received a basket of assorted herbs as a favor, and each child a basket of candy. The Grigby Swing Chorus, directed by Delores Barker, provided the evening's entertainment. The committee arranging the evening's festivities included: Candance Thompson, Diane Schwendeman, Dean Graf, June Morgan, Margaret Wilimzig, Marion Mertz, Roberta Cottrell, Joyce Albers, Eupel Tarris, Wilma Russell, Marilyn Lumsford and Hilda Lombardi.

Education office folks meet

The Granite City Association of Educational Office Personnel held its April meeting at the Den Restaurant. Betty Grote, president, presided over the business meeting. Those attending were Barb Dickerson, Sharon Parker, Annette Landman, Melanie McFarland, Getty Grote, Lee Guenther, Sonya Ohanesian, Alice Campbell, Wanda Page, Dorothy Larner, Cindy O'Neill, Gayle Kindle, Rhonda Woodson, Arlene Smith, Lucille Caban, Marcella Pilcher, Marge Burdge and Barb Schriber. Lucille Caban gave a report on the yearly convention held in Decatur.

Mother, Friends Banquet

The Presbyterian Women of the First Presbyterian Church hosted their annual Mother, Daughter, Friends banquet in the fellowship hall of the church on May 14th. Moderator Barbara Landis welcomed those in attendance and introduced Rev. Joan Marshall, who gave the invocation. The dining room tables were decorated with flowers and candles in pastel spring-hues. Favors were miniature fans in co-ordinating colors. Following the dinner, entertainment was provided by Pat Wickmann, a ventriloquist, who with the help of her puppet friends presented a delightful program. Lois Danile, coordinator of the banquet, thanked her committee and presented attendance awards to Paula Krieschok, May Earls, Lue Taber, Leona Phillips, Danielle Fuhrman and Jaimee Hendrickson. The group joined hands and sang, "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" before adjourning.

Night at ball park

Twelve members of the First Presbyterian Church in Granite City attended the Presbyterian Children's Services third annual Night at the Ball Park when the St. Louis Cardinals played the Cincinnati Reds on May 13. Approximately 500 Presbyterians from churches in Missouri and Illinois cheered the Cardinals that night. Proceeds from the event benefited Presbyterian Children's Services.

Salon 53 elects new officers

Madison County Salon 53 of the Eight and Forty held its meeting at the Venice-Madison Post 307 Home on Tuesday, May 21. Hostesses were Norma Hillmer, Frances Cowley, Loretta Ziegler, Mary Ballentine, and Dorothy Hinson and 18 members attended. Following a lunch, a business meeting was conducted by Marjorie Rosenthal, Chapeau. She thanked everyone for the cooperation with the program, cakes, decorations, and favors for the Departmental Chapeau Party in April. Gerry Tjaden reported on the Chapeau Meeting at Fayette County in Vandalia in April. Those attending were Marjorie Rosenthal, Geraldine Tjaden, Judy Zimmerman, Dorothy Hinson, and Kenneth Hinson. Eighty stuffed toys and pillows were taken to the Gateway Chapter of the Cystic Fibrosis in Clayton.

Value of the toys was $900. Irene Schneck, Nurses Scholarship chairman, collected dimes for this program. Election of officers was held for the year 1991-1992. Those elected were: Chapeau Georgia Pollard of Highland, Chapeau Shirley Landolt of Alhambra, Demi Chapeau Premier: Elsi Vierregge of Bethalto, Demi Chapeau Deuxieme: Florence Horn of Alton, L'Aumonier: Marjorie Rosenthal of New Douglas, L'Archiviste: and Martha Maynard of Wood River, LaConcierge.

Appointed officers are: Dorothy Hinson of Madison, LaSeigneur, and Norma Hillmer of Madison, LaCassier. A memorial service was held in memory of one deceased partner, Helen Hausman of Wood River. The service was conducted by Florence Horn, Georgia Pollard, Marjorie Rosenthal, and Martha Maynard. The next meeting will be in Wood River on Tuesday, June 25. Games were played following the meeting. The attendance prize was won by Adaline Drury of Alton.

Ladies Coterie installs five officers

The Ladies Coterie met at Rusty's Restaurant in Edwardsville May 16. A luncheon was served to 35 members and their guests.

Hostesses were Mrs. Raymond Horn and Mrs. Marvin Eddington. Prayer was given by the president, Mrs. Richard Schwendemann. Installation of new officers for the 1991-1992 year was conducted by Mrs. Richard Kagy. Her theme was entitled "Rainbows of Service" and pink roses, the Ladies Coterie Flower, were presented to each new officer.

The following officers were installed: Elizabeth Briggs, president; Elsie Rodell, vice president; Helen Friedman, recording secretary; Esther Vasileff, treasurer; Lillian Deips, corresponding secretary.

Briggs presented each member and guest with a flower. She then awarded to the retiring president, Schwendemann, her President's Pin and expressed appreciation for all she had done this past year.

Schwendemann thanked the members and officers for their cooperation and presented each officer with a small brass candleholder. "Monte Carlo Whist" was played and floral prizes were won by Mrs. Harold Brown, Mrs. Allen Shaffer, Mrs. Lawrence McCauley, Mrs. David John, Mrs. Harold Briggs, Mrs. Virgil Harmon, Mrs. Floyd Henley, and Mrs. James Fox. Other guests were Mrs. Harold Brown, Mrs. Floyd Schilling, Mrs. Carl Bargdorf, Mrs. Allen Shaffer, Mrs. Lawrence McCauley, Diane Schwendemann, Mrs. Howard Johannigmeier, Mrs. Paul Edmonds, Mrs. John Kirchoff and Virginia Segar.

The Club Collect was repeated by the membership at the close of the Guest Day and Installation Party. Mrs. William Albers, hostess for the September 19 meeting, announced that it would be held at the Niedrighaus Methodist Church.

Lake School planting discussed

The regular monthly meeting of the Cloverview Garden Club was held at Ravaneli Restaurant with Mrs. B.C. O'Neill as hostess. Nine were present.

Blooming perennials decorated the tables and members discussed vegetables that flower.

Mrs. Orion Johnson gave a report on the plantings at Lake School. The gladiolus, marigolds and salvia are thriving and the children at the school are enjoying the flowers. The group will meet soon to continue with more planting.

Mrs. B. O'Neill planted impatiens at the library and will plant mums in October.

The nursing home committee visited several patients who have no family. The members will continue to visit each week.

A Bradford pear tree was purchased and a bronze plaque will be installed.

The club will entertain the District V for President Council Day on Oct. 24th.

In June the group is planning a trip to Decatur as a pilgrimage.

The group was given by Mrs. B.C. O'Neill.

Odom provides 'sudden victory'

Sophomore's goal in OT sends girls to state tourney

By Dave Whaley
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — With eerie visions of past heartbreaks no doubt flashing through their minds, the Lady Warriors went into overtime Tuesday night.

But three years of frustration and heartache was wiped away as sudden death was turned into sudden victory by Shawn Odom. At 7:12 of the first overtime, the sophomore took a pass from junior Amanda Witter, weaved through the defense and blasted a shot past Springfield goalie Pam Wilson for a 1-0 win in the Granite City sectional final.

The Lady Warriors (19-2) thus advanced to the state tournament for the first time. They will play Downers Grove South (16-2-2) in the state quarterfinals Friday at 12:30 p.m. at Naperville Central.

"I don't even want to think about how it would have been if we had lost. I hadn't even thought about losing. We were nervous about this game as soon as Saturday's game was over."

—Angela Blason

High School in southwest suburban Chicago.

"Coach had been telling me to put one in the whole game," said a near-delirious Odom. "We were pumped at the end. We had a lot more momentum than they did and I knew we were going to get one."

Odom was a somewhat unlikely hero. Coach Gene Baker didn't even have her listed on the varsity roster at the beginning of the season. But she worked her way into the lineup by mid-season and has become a key player. Her goal Tuesday was her seventh of the season.

Shawn had really been a lift," said Baker. "She was just beside herself after the goal, but she was calm on the play. She took her time and made a fantastic shot."

Actually, the goal was quite similar to the last sudden-death goal scored by a GCHS soccer team. That would be Herb Heaton's goal that won the 1987 boys state championship team. On both occasions, the shooter was breaking free right down the middle and unloaded an unstoppable shot to the left corner.

While Heaton's goal broke a four-year drought without a state title for the boys team (and served as a springboard for three titles in the last four years), Odom's goal served as a breakthrough of its own for the girls. Three times they had reached the sectional finals; three times they had been beaten by Collinsville.

Springfield (19-9-1) had taken care of the Lady Kahoks by a 3-1 score on Saturday, and that got the Lady Warriors' attention.

"It threw us off a whole lot when we didn't get to play Collinsville," said senior captain Angela Blason. "We didn't all stay to watch that game. Some of us were coming in and out and watching parts of it. But coach scouted (Springfield) and he warned us about their throw-ins. We knew how to defend against them and we did it."

Granite City outshot Springfield 10-2 and also had a 10-2 edge in corner kicks. Witter had chances to score all night, but was happy to settle for the assist on Odom's goal. Springfield senior goalie Pam Wilson was sensational, making six saves — most of them on dangerous shots.

"Give their goalkeeper credit, but Stephanie Kull deserves a lot of credit also," said Baker.

Kull picked up Granite City's 16th shutout of the season, and she hasn't been scored on in the post-season. The seedings for the sectional proved to be accurate as the games got progressively tougher for the Lady Warriors: 12-0, 8-0, 2-0 and, finally, 1-0 in overtime.

"It's very tough for the seniors if we don't win tonight," said Baker. "Springfield played with a lot of heart. They're well-coached and in great condition."

"I don't even want to think about how it would have been if we had lost," said Blason. "I

New chapter added to Warrior soccer legacy

GRANITE CITY — The Warrior soccer family came together again Tuesday night and added a new chapter to the saga.

For Gene Baker, taking a team to the state tournament is certainly nothing new. In 18 seasons of coaching the boys program, he's done that 13 times — with nine state titles. But in three years coaching the girls, he had fallen short in the sectional final.

While Collinsville High School has played the part of Wile E. Coyote to Granite City's Road-runner over the years in boys soccer, the roles had been reversed with the girls. The Lady Kahoks had denied the Lady Warriors three straight seasons. But there was no need for any ACME products this time. Collinsville was KO'd in the semifinals by a talented and physical Springfield club.

The Senators gave the Lady Warriors everything they could handle Tuesday, but sophomore Shawn Odom ended all the frustration with her overtime goal. She was buried beneath a pile of teammates after scoring at 87:12. But it had been much more than 87 minutes of frustration, particularly for seniors like Angela Blason, Addie Lenzi, Jennifer Harper, Tia Rees, Hollie Taylor and Angela Jones.

"It was a feather in their caps to get to the sectional finals three years in a row," said Baker. "They needed to realize that. But it would have been tough for them to lose this one."

Thanks to a sophomore, the seniors will get their shot at state this weekend. For those looking for omens, it took Baker four years before he won a state title with the boys (although he had gone to state in two of his first three years). This is his fourth season coaching the girls.

"The girls program is about at the same level now as the boys program was in our fourth year," said Baker. "The numbers are where we want them and we might be able to take off from here. But the state tournament is a different thing. All kinds of things can happen. It will be neat to see how they handle it."

So the seniors have to miss graduation ceremonies on Friday night. A state title might serve as fair compensation.

"I don't mind missing it for this," said Blason, who seemed to be one of the more relaxed players in a frenzied post-game scene Tuesday. "I know there were a few parents who wrote letters to the school board to try to get the (commencement) date changed, but nothing really happened. This has been four years coming for us and now we're just thinking about another state title."

Another state title. Yes, it would be the first for the girls. But it would just add to the

this year. Granite City faces Downers Grove South in the state quarterfinals Friday at 12:30 at Naperville Central High School.

Tournament being moved to Naperville Central

The site of the state soccer tournament has been changed.

The tournament will now be played at Naperville Central High School. Jody Harrison, the athletic director of St. Charles High School, was killed in an automobile accident Tuesday night.

The starting time of Friday's first game has also been moved from noon to 12:30 p.m. To get to Naperville Central, take Interstate 55 to Interstate 355 north just south of Bolingbrook. Take 355 up to 75th Street and make a left. Go west on 75th to Washington Street and turn north to Hillside. Make a left on Hillside and go two blocks to the high school.

A caravan and reception is being planned for the Lady Warrior soccer team on Sunday. According to GCHS principal Dave Painter, should the Lady Warriors finish first, second or third (i.e. win at least two games) in the state tournament this weekend, they will be greeted by a caravan at the auto emission testing center on Chain of Rocks Road at approximately 3 p.m.

The caravan will continue to the high school parking lot, to be followed by a short reception inside Memorial Gymnasium.

The Lady Warriors were scheduled to leave for Naperville at noon today.

Springfield was formidable foe

By Mike Kelly
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — The Springfield Senators certainly made their presence felt in the Granite City Girls Soccer Sectional.

They upset Collinsville 3-1 on Saturday in the semifinals before battling the Lady Warriors into overtime Tuesday. Shawn Odom's goal at 7:12 of overtime finally ended the Senators' season at 19-1.

The loss left Springfield coaches Bob Wharton and Phil Eck feeling both disappointed and proud.

"We knew it wasn't going to be easy coming here," Wharton said. "They have a legend in coach (Gene) Baker and their kids are well-schooled. Playing Granite City is like facing a machine. Their kids know exactly how to react against every situation. They rarely beat themselves. They don't make critical mistakes in the big games."

But Springfield matched up pretty well against Granite City (19-2) in the opening period. The Senators held the Lady Warriors to only one shot on goal and created a couple of scoring chances of their own. But the tide turned in the second quarter as Granite City began to dominate the play.

"We were just hoping to cash in on one of our few opportunities," Wharton said. "They had numerous chances out there, but Pam (Wilson) did an excellent job keeping them scoreless until the overtime session."

"But you're not going to win many games when you fail to score. I don't care how well your goalkeeper plays. We couldn't muster any consistency on offense after the first quarter."

Wilson, who will play at Quincy College, was outstanding in goal. She made several point-blank saves, especially in the closing moments of regulation time, to keep the Senators in contention.

"She's done that for us all season," Eck said. "She isn't afraid to challenge the challenge. I felt going to penalty kicks would have been in our favor. She's an aggressive goalkeeper. Unfortunately, we never got to that stage."

"We were pressing a little bit to score in the overtime period and our defenders got caught up the field," Wilson said. "But I don't blame them at all. I'm the last line of defense and they got it by me. I'm actually the one to blame. It was a small scoring chance and (Odom) pulled the trigger at the right time. I never had a chance to react."

A victory by Springfield would have given central Illinois its first representative at the state tournament.

"This is quite a feather in our hat," Eck said. "The last team from central Illinois to reach the state tournament was the boys team at Springfield-Lanphier. The girls teams in our area have never been a factor in the sectional."

"Granite City and Collinsville are always the teams to beat down here," Wharton said. "But we made the most of our chances against Collinsville. We couldn't produce the same results against Granite City because they shut off the mid-field area on us."

"Seeing Granite City's victory celebration tonight will only make us hungrier to earn a trip north next season," Eck said. "That's the ultimate goal, but we played a talented team very well tonight. I'm very proud of the effort."

Baker echoed those sentiments. "I was worried about Springfield," he said. "Their victory over Collinsville wasn't a fluke. Those kids play good defensive soccer and they have a solid goalkeeper. We challenged her with some great shots, but she kicked everything away. They also created a couple of nervous moments for us in our zone."

State

for both boys and girls in the same year. The girls state finals begin Friday at Naperville Central High School (see related story) as the Lady Warriors (19-2) take on Downers Grove South (16-2-3) in a 12:30 p.m. quarterfinal game.

The Mustangs spotted Hinsdale Central a 1-0 lead in Tuesday's Downers Grove sectional final, but roared back for a 4-1 win. They are in the same boat as Granite City, having reached the sectional finals each of the past three seasons only to fall short of state.

Coach Barry Jacobson is a little surprised with the success of this year's team. He lost 12 seniors from last season. But a relatively young team has come together for a big effort.

We like to play a little slower style than some of the other teams who have made it," said Jacobson. "We're just happy to make it after coming so close the last three years."

Sounds familiar. The Mustangs are led by junior striker Kathy Mitchell, one of the state's leading scorers with 25 goals and 10 assists. The defense is led by sweeper Janet Hill and senior goalie Jenaya Mataya, who has 10 shutouts and a goals against average of less than a goal a game. Downers Grove South has only two seniors, with seven sophomores and three freshmen.

Whaley

GCHS soccer legacy — which features 10 state titles for the boys program. Several boys players of the past and present were on hand Tuesday to cheer the Lady Warriors on. Skip Birdsong, Jay Robertson, Pat Rich, Dan Terrell, Matt Cook and Jim Chomko, just to name a few.

Tim Henson and Josh Houston — two who will try to help the Warriors to another title next fall — are the stat men for the girls team.

Mel Bunting, Baker's long-time assistant coach for the boys

"Playing the first game Friday will help with all the young players we have," said Jacobson. "Plus, our team will be Friday night, so it's going to be a big day for them."

Jacobson is 115-30-10 in eight years coaching the girls program. He has coached the boys program for five seasons.

"I think our girls will be up to the challenge," he said. "I'm sure Granite City will be a tough team, but we've had some success down in that area. We've beaten Collinsville a couple of times and beat Mehlville (Mo.) last year."

Jacobson said Libertyville might be rated a slight favorite because of their experience (state champions in 1989). Waukegan Valley and Maine South are also very good.

"Those teams are all very fast and really move the ball up the field," said Jacobson. "We won a 4-3 game with Maine South this year."

While Mitchell is the Mustangs' top gun, the Lady Warriors are getting scoring from all around. Junior Amanda Witter leads the way with 14 goals and five assists (33 points), followed by senior Adelle Lenzi with 10 goals and nine assists for 29 points. Shawn Odom, Brooke Bjorkman, Michelle Knox, Suzanne Stuart and Kami Kessel are other threats.

Angela Bason, Julie Goclan, Tammy Dutko, Beth Rapoff, Ann

who was stricken with cancer early this year, was there. So was Jennifer Debeve, the finest girls player in school history. She deserved a trip to state as much as anybody, but she was smiling and genuinely happy for this year's team.

And that's where the credit goes — to the girls, to Baker and to assistant coaches Virgil Kirksey and Haig Nghoghossian.

It was the Warrior soccer family together — again.

(Dave Whaley is the sports editor of the Press-Record.)

hadn't even thought about losing. We were nervous about this game as soon as Saturday's game was over. We wouldn't have minded playing right then."

Wilson made her best saves on Jennifer Harper in the second quarter and on Witter early in overtime. Beth Rapoff hit the crossbar on a direct kick late in the first half, then almost created a goal late in regulation time off a corner kick. Witter and Odom nearly scored in the final three minutes of regulation, but Wilson was able to smother the ball right on the goal line.

Springfield's best chances came on quick counterattacks. Witter was able to clear a loose ball out of danger in the first half and Kuit smothered a loose ball with Sarah Maddox bearing down on her in the second half.

"You have to worry a little when you get all those chances and don't cash in," said Baker. "But Amanda Witter really came on at the end and was a constant threat. And our backfield was solid all night."

Bud Melman brings antics to St. Louis

By Pamela Selbert
Correspondent

Anyone who's watched "Late Night with David Letterman" more than a time or two has seen the antics of Larry "Bud" Melman, who looks like your grandfather and does a variety of wacky stunts on the show.

His head might appear atop the massive stuffed body of "Big Man" advising ladies to beware of his irresistible embrace. Or, wired for flight, he might appear as John F. Kennedy announcing "Ich bin ein Berliner" then taking to the air to batter down the simulated Berlin Wall with his feet.

What he does is hilarious if for its shock value as much as its humor.

"The flying is the best part," said Melman in a recent phone interview from New York. Whether or not he'll fly on St. Louis stages remains a secret. Melman wouldn't say. But whatever his act, when Melman comes to town May 30 and 31 to do a couple of South County Funny Bone shows and to host St. Louis Comic Relief at Kiener Plaza, he'll keep local audiences in stitches.

Melman, lifelong resident of Brooklyn, N.Y., said he branched off into comedy after performing for many years in Off-Broadway shows.

"I studied acting with Herbert Berghof then went on the stage," he said. "I finally decided that once you've been in the rut of acting for a long period it becomes like doing the same show on stage for a long time among people you know—nobody criticizes you and you don't know where you stand."

Melman said he prefers making funny movies and has made several—though he had trouble remembering their names or when he made them. But favorites, he said, were "Honey, We Shrunk Ourselves" in the '70s, and "The First Time," which "came later."

He made another comedy called "King of the Z's" and though he didn't know it at the time, the movie writers were also the writers for Letterman's show.

"They showed it as an audition piece for David before his show went on the air," said Melman. Letterman was intrigued with the idea of putting Melman on his show in comic situations, and the result was Melman introducing Letterman on the first episode of the show in 1982. Melman's been a regular ever since, appearing two or three times each week, he said.

They always write something crazy for me to do," he said. Recent appearances have been "cameo appearances" as Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf and Roy Orbison, he said. Melman said he also occasionally sings on the show.

"Letterman is fabulous to work with," he said, adding that he intends to continue performing on the show "as long as it's on the air."

Melman will make three appearances as host at the South County Funny Bone, 19 Ronnie's Plaza—at 8:30 p.m. May 30, and 8:30 and 10:45 p.m. May 31. Appearing with him will be comics Dennis Franklin and Rahn Ramey. Tickets cost $10 for general admission and $12 for reserved seating. Call 843-2727 for reservations and information.

Melman also will make a special appearance at the St. Louis Comic Relief benefit that will take place from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. May 30 at Kiener Plaza, Seventh and Market streets. Appearing with him at this show, which is free and open to the public, will be comedians Vic

Dunlop, Michael Pace, Dennis Franklin, Craig Hawksley and Rahn Ramey.

This will be Funny Bone's second participation in St. Louis Comic Relief, a national organization that was formed four years ago to help provide health care for the homeless. Numerous clinics around the United States hold local comic relief benefits prior to a fall telethon (this year it is scheduled to take place Nov. 16).

Funny Bone's money-making efforts kicked off May 13, and from then until the end of October the club will offer $2 passes to audience members; each $2 collected will go toward Comic Relief and provide free admission to any Funny Bone show to the purchaser. Passes also will be available May 30 at the Kiener Plaza performance.

The Funny Bone and radio station KSHE are co-sponsors of this year's St. Louis Comic Relief. Official hosts of the event are Michael Pace, Robin Smith and Cliff St. James. For more information call 469-6692.

Marriages dot music world; some lasted, some didn't

By Bill Beggs
Correspondent

Making beautiful music together—John Lennon and Yoko Ono did, and Emilio and Gloria Este-fan—not to mention Steve and Eydie—still are. And, even if their marriages don't last forever, the music that couples made together will.

Here are questions about husbands and wives whose relationships were as interesting as the music they made together:

1. Who in the Mammas & The Papas was married to whom?
2. "Solid," No. 12 in 1985, was the biggest Top 40 hit for what husband-and-wife R&B vocal duo?
3. What No. 4 from 1971 was the biggest hit for Ike & Tina Turner?
4. Even as their marriage dissolved, Christine and John McVie stuck together in what band—which finally hit No. 1 in 1977 with what tune?
5. "You Don't Have To Be A Star (To Be In My Show)" was a No. 1 hit for what husband-and-wife team and when?
6. What do the husband-and-wife team of John Smith and Valerie Day, whose "I Can't Wait" hit No. 3 in 1986, call themselves?
7. In what year was "Love Will Keep Us Together" a No. 1 smash and for what husband-and-wife vocal duo?
8. What do Chris Frantz and wife Tina Weymouth of Talking Heads call their extraordinary studio project, which hit No. 31 in 1982 with "Genius Of Love"?
9. "The Future's So Bright, I Gotta Wear Shades," No. 19, 1986, was the first Top 40 hit for what husband-and-wife duo?

10. Whose signature song, from what year, was "I Got You Babe"? (Extra credit: Who took a reggae version of this song to No. 28 in 1985?)

ANSWERS:

1. John Phillips was married to Michelle.
2. "Solid" was by the duo of Marvin Hamlisch and Paul Simon.
3. "You Don't Have To Be A Star (To Be In My Show)" was by the duo of John and Valerie Day.
4. Even as their marriage dissolved, Christine and John McVie stuck together in what band—which finally hit No. 1 in 1977 with what tune?

Local woman returns to lead '42nd Street'

By Harry Hamm
Correspondent

Former St. Louisian Jeanna Schweppe will play Peggy Sawyer, the lead role in "42nd Street," when the show returns to The Mundy July 15 through 21. Jeanna, a 1982 graduate of Incarnate Word Academy in Bel-Nor, is the daughter of Betty and Norbert Schweppe of Spanish Lake.

The St. Louis performance will be Schweppe's first time in the lead role of "42nd Street," which she has toured with periodically during the past five years.

Schweppe, who now lives in New York City and takes acting classes between shows, completed a yearlong stint with the touring company of "Starlight Express" in April. She had to put in a little extra effort to prepare for "Starlight," a show in which all the actors and actresses wear roller skates, her mother said.

"Jeanna took a big chance when she signed for 'Starlight Express,'" Betty Schweppe said. "She had never roller-skated before, and since she is primarily a singer and dancer, they had to teach her how to skate. Fortunately, even though she took a few tumbles, there were no serious injuries."

BLAKE ON BRIGHMAN'S TRAIL

Many executive producer Paul Blake almost scored a casting coup this summer when he came close to landing Sarah Brightman in a show. The Mundy is producing this summer, Brightman, the ex-wife of Andrew Lloyd Webber, was one of the original stars of Webber's "The Phantom of the Opera."

"We didn't have a particular show in mind," Blake said. "We just wanted her and there were several starring roles she could have done. But she's tied up in London at the Paladium theater doing 'The Music of Andrew Lloyd Webber,' so she was unable to work it out in her schedule."

Blake said Brightman is excited about the prospect of playing the Mundy and is making tentative plans to appear there during the 1992 summer season.

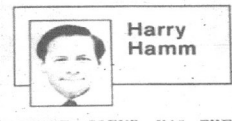

Park offers summer art classes

Laumeier Sculpture Park is now accepting registrations for its summer art classes for children and adults.

Classes are offered from June 10 through Aug. 23 and are held in the sculpture park's education center.

Fees are $40 for 90-minute classes and $60 for two-hour classes. Most classes have an additional materials fee. For schedules and information, call 821-1209.

Classes offered for children are "Edible Art," "Saturday Morning Cartoons," "Pre-School Art," "Wearable Art for Mothers and Daughters," "Cartooning II," "Sculpture and Mixed Media for Kids," "Everything Paper for Kids," "Clay for Kids,"

CREVE COEUR HAS THE CLASSICS

If you think there's no movie like an old movie, cue up for the Classic Film series that's now under way at the Creve Coeur, Olive Street Road west of Lindbergh.

The series of 24 films, each of which will run for three or four days, began Wednesday with "The Magnificent Seven." Other films in the series include "Close Encounters of the Third Kind," "The Bridge on the River Kwai," "Out of Africa," "The Music Man," "From Here, To Eternity" and "Dr. Zhivago."

Standard admission prices apply for the series. For adults, they are $5.50 evenings, $3.50 for matinees and $3 for rush-hour shows. Children 12 and under are $3 at all times. For people 55 and older, Wehrenberg, which owns the theater, offers a Film Crew Club that allows members to get into movies for $2. Wehrenberg also soon will circulate at its theaters questionnaires asking patrons what films they would like to see in future classic film series.

For the running times of current films in the series, call 567-0045. For information about upcoming films in the series, or to make suggestions about movies not now scheduled, call 822-4520.

THE HOMETOWN TOP 5

The hottest films in St. Louis for the past week were:

AMC: "FX 2," "Switch," "One Good Cop," "A Kiss Before Dying" and "Out For Justice."

Wehrenberg: "FX 2," "Oscar," "Switch," "The Silence of the Lambs" and "One Good Cop."

XX: A RAGE IN HARLEM—An exciting, fast-moving adaptation of Chester Himes' novel about Harlem in the 1950s and the people who made it a decadent, violent but exciting place to be. Robin Givens stars as Greg Hines and Danny Glover also headlines a fine ensemble cast.

Rated R (language, sex, violence). Running time: 108 minutes. Northwest Plaza, Halls Ferry, Union Station, St. Clair.

XXXX AWAKE—A brilliant film adaptation of true story about a psychiatrist who experiments with drug therapy, bringing new meaning and personal freedom for some chronically ill patients. Robert De Niro and Robin Williams star as the two.

Rated PG-13 (dramatic intensity and scenes of a mental institution). Running time: 120 minutes. Lindbergh, Village, Cross Keys.

BACKDRAFT—Ron Howard directs a film that finally portrays firefighters for the real heroes they are, starring Robert De Niro and Kurt Russell.

Rated R. Running time: 136 minutes. Clarkson, Des Peres, Eureka, Halls Ferry, Kirkwood, Mid Rivers, Ronnie's, St. Charles, Union Station, St. Clair, Eastgate, Galleria, Esquire.

XX: CLASS ACTION—Gene Hackman and Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio play a father and daughter who are attorneys and must represent opposite sides in a large law suit. Well acted but predictable.

Rated R for language. Running time: 109 minutes. Village.

XXX DANCE WITH WOLVES—Kevin Costner stars as a Union Army hero who seeks out the unsplashed old west in joins forces with a Sioux Indian tribe. A rugged, beautifully photographed outdoor adventure with only a handful of dull moments.

Rated PG-13 (explicit bad scenes). Running time: 190 minutes. Keller, Westport, St. Charles, Esquire.

DROP DEAD FRED—Is a comedy about an an whose imaginary friend from childhood returns when s is an adult to help her through oubled times.

Rated PG-13. Running time: 98 minutes. Alton, Arkison, Halls Ferry, Keller, Kirkwood, Plaza, Union Station, St. Clair, Regency Square, Crestwood, Esquire.

XX: FX 2: THE DEADLY ART OF ILLUSION—Instead of more of the same, it's sequel of the hit from 1986 offers less because of an inferior script and special effects wizardy that isn't quite as magical it was the first time around.

Rated PG-13 (violence, language). Running time: 107 minutes. Clarkson, Halls Ferry, Keller, Northwest Plaza, St. Clair, Crestwood, Galleria.

XXXX GODFELLAS—A Mafia epic by director Martin Scorsese that makes you an offer to enjoy that you won't want to refuse. Perfectly cast. Very violent. Do not forget.

guage). Running time: 145 minutes. Lindbergh, Village.

HAMLET—McGibson and Shakespeare's best.

Rated PG. Running time: 138 minutes. Lindbergh.

XX: HOME ALONE—A Christmas season story of a family vacation with only one thing missing—one of the children, Macaulay Culkin stars as the child left behind. An innocent, sweet comedy set in Chicago from John Hughes.

Rated PG (mild language). Running time: 95 minutes. Lindbergh, Jamestown, Village, Maculauki, Cross Keys, Andrews.

HUDSON AWAKE—Bruce Willis is a glb deacker fresh out of the big house who gets involved in the theft of some priceless paintings in Rome.

Rated R. Running time: 95 minutes. Chesterfield, Des Peres, Eureka, Halls Ferry, Kirkwood, Union Station, Northwest Square, Galleria, Eastgate, Quad.

XX: KIDNAP—Mandy Patinkin and Brad Pitt stars in the story of composer Frederic Chopin as his relationship with French novelist Amandine Aureole-Julia Dupin, who wrote under the name of George Sand.

Rated PG-13. Running time: 112 minutes. Creve Coeur.

XX: KINDERGARTEN COP—Arnold Schwarzenegger plays an undercover cop pretending to be a kindergarten teacher in order to tap a murderer and drug dealer. A far-fetched idea. A mediocre result.

Rated R (violence). Running time: 110 minutes. Lindbergh.

XX: KING RALPH—John Goodman is the best and only reason to see this comic fable about a lounge pianist in Las Vegas who becomes King of England. Goodman is very funny.

Rated PG (partial nudity in brief scene in strip joint). Running time: 97 minutes. Lindbergh, Jamestown, Village.

XX: LA FEMME NIKITA—A curious tale of killing and the finer points of being a high-trained, female government assassin from French filmmaker Luc Besson. Interesting, but different.

Rated R (violence). Running time: 118 minutes. H-Pointe.

MANEQUIN—A comedy sequel to the original film about a mannequin that comes to life.

Rated PG. Running time: 95 minutes. Clarkson, Des Peres, Eureka, Halls Ferry, Kenrick, Mid Rivers, Ronnie's, St. Charles, Union Station, St. Clair, Northwest Square, Esquire.

XX: MORTAL THOUGHTS—A no-holds-barred murder mystery about domestic violence with tragic results. Bruce Willis, Demi Moore and Glenn Headly star in this well-crafted film by director Alan Rudolph.

Rated R for language, violence and one attempted rape scene. Running time: 104 minutes. Northwest Square, Regency Square.

XX: NEW JACK CITY—A savage story of the drug trade in Harlem, the villainous men who thrive on its trade and some brave cops who try to stop it. A message movie, but the message gets overshadowed by the violence.

Rated R for killing, murder and general mayhem. Running time: 97 minutes. Halls Ferry, Union Station, Northwest Square.

XX: ONE GOOD COP—Michael Keaton plays a hard-working cop who does a bad thing after his widowed partner is killed in the line-of-duty and Keaton takes over the custody of his three little girls. Good action. Average script. Uneven editing.

Rated R (violence, language). Running time: 107 minutes. Keller, St. Charles, Northwest Square.

XXX ONLY THE LONELY—Melanie O'Hara is a strict Irish mother and John Cadden her overgrown son struggling to break away from his widowed mother so he can savor his first true love, Allyn Sheedy and Anthony Quinn co-star in this cozy, innocent story. It has good levels of both humor & reality, and is very entertaining.

Rated PG-13 (a few inferred

Workers of the future must adapt to changes

By Roger McGrath
Correspondent

Mamas, don't let your babies grow up to be farmers. There's just no future in it. Nor is there in manufacturing, according to the U.S. Labor Department. By the year 2000, there'll be 5 percent fewer farmers than in 1988 and 2 percent fewer blue collar workers.

On the plus side, Engineers, health care workers, any position having to do with computers, even school teachers will be much in demand as the century draws to a close, career counselors said.

And with increased demand comes a higher starting salary, said Tony Lane, managing director of the St. Louis office of Drake Beam & Morin Inc., a career transition firm.

Engineers are already among the nation's highest-paid professionals, but demand is already boosting salaries elsewhere. The nursing shortage, for example, has led to higher starting salaries in that field, said Victor Lindquist, placement director at Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill.

Teachers' wages are improving, too, especially for those who teach more than one subject and more so if there's a shortage of teachers in those subjects, said Deborah Kettler, director of career placement services at the University of Missouri-St. Louis.

Choosing a career solely because it is well-paying isn't a wise move, said Jamie Archer, a placement counselor at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. A better route is to go into a field that interests you, Kettler said.

Fast-growing occupations reflect economics. Engineers develop technology that will keep American business competitive in world markets.

Demographics are also a factor. The Baby Boom generation is getting older, hence the need for more medical personnel, and their children have just entered the school system, thus the increased demand for teachers.

"The medical field is going to explode in the next 10 years," Lane said.

The number of medical assistants is expected to increase 70 percent from 1988 to 2000, the Labor Department estimates. Home health aides such as visiting nurses and therapists will climb 63 percent, registered nurses 39 percent, licensed practical nurses 37 percent and nursing aides 31 percent.

The total excluding physicians and the medical technicians who keep health-care equipment in tip-top shape: Nearly 1.6 million new jobs for nurses and aides.

Lindquist, author of the Lindquist-Kettler Reports, an annual analysis of employment trends, sees growth in all engineering categories. He's especially high on environmental engineering, which will benefit from renewed interest in the environmental issues, and on materials engineering, the sector of developing new materials such as lightweight skins for jet aircraft.

There's strong evidence of the computer in U.S. society and employment trends will echo its presence in the marketplace.

The Labor Department predicts 53 percent more computer analysts and 48 percent more programmers will be needed by 2000.

Some observers have taken to calling these high-growth occupations "gold collar" jobs, said Sandra O'Neal, principal in the local office of Towers Perrin, an job transition firm.

require an advanced degree or specialized training, these aren't white-collar management or supervisory jobs.

While nurses, engineers and school teachers actually do "grunt level" work just like the lunch, post-grad, gold collar occupations like cerebral, white-shirt-and-tie positions, not back-breaking dirt-under-the-fingernails jobs.

Career counselors also note that today's workers can expect to change careers several times during their life. To succeed in such an environment, workers must be able to adapt to changing conditions, they said. Perhaps most important, all workers, white, blue or gold collar, shouldn't become so specialized that changing technology could wipe out their livelihood.

Culibek honored

Patricia J. Culibek of Granite City recently received an outstanding performance/performance award from the Defense Mapping Agency.

This award is given to Aerospace Center employees for exceeding the standard of performance for their position. It is awarded after an evaluation of the individual's performance during the previous 12 months.

The Defense Mapping Agency Aerospace Center provides worldwide mapping support for the Department of Defense.

Local firm gets contract to build Waterloo school

By Basil Chissano
Correspondent

The L. Wolf construction company of Granite City has been awarded a contract to build a new middle school in Waterloo.

The Monroe County Public Building Commission voted final approval May 13 of the contract for the new school.

In making the award, the commission reviewed and accepted over $213,000 in cost reductions.

The Waterloo School Board had earlier directed contractor Leo Wolf and project architect Wolff's final base bid was reduced from $2,868,000 to $2,654,514.

The awarding of three alternate bids and separate bids for a walk-in freezer/cooler and library renovations brought the total awards for construction projects today.

Leo Hefner, district superintendent, assured the board that the items eliminated from the contract to reduce costs would not reduce the quality of the finished school.

"We don't feel that quality will be hurt at all," Hefner said. "It's going to be one of the few buildings in Monroe County that is earthquake resistant, energy efficient, and handicapped accessible."

Mark Richards, project manager for L. Wolf Co., agreed that the contract changes did not hurt the quality of the project. He added that this kind of cost reduction effort is typical of over 90 percent of major construction projects today.

"It's still a beautiful design they've come up with," Richards said. "They've had to take out the Cadillac items, but even some of those could be put back in later."

With the reductions, the district was able to establish a contingency fund of $85,843 that will be used for unforeseen expenses and possibly for restoring deleted contract items later, Hefner said.

Richards said construction will begin as soon as the site preparation work is complete. Project architects estimate that time will be around June 1.

According to Richards, L. Wolf ordered the structural steel and reinforcing steel as soon as it received word of the award. That was done to ensure there would be no delay at the site is available.

The contract schedule places final project completion around Feb. 1, depending on the actual starting date. Richards said no problem is expected meeting that schedule.

"We'll be ahead of schedule," Richards said, "unless monsoon rains move in."

Richards said that L. Wolf would be subcontracting a majority of the construction contract and that one local contractor, Huebner Concrete, would handle 10 percent of the work. Some of the items that Wolf will retain direct responsibility for, according to Richards, are the carpentry and all interior finishing.

Richards said L. Wolf Co. has constructed over 20 schools in the southern Illinois area, including the Belle Valley North and Belle Valley South schools in Belleville.

New U-Haul dealership opens here
